The URL at the top is 'arias.peachnewmedia.com/streaming/interface-v7.php?topic=210546&band=1&stream=1&id=5639120&semid=91336&provider=526&custid=941944'. The ARIAS-U.S. logo and 'freestone' logo are visible. A green arrow points to the 'Video' tab in the navigation bar, which also includes 'Course Instructions' and 'Help'. The main content area has a red header with the number '1' and the title 'INTRODUCTION'. The text reads: 'Because the ARIAS-U.S. Code of Conduct (the Code™) sets forth considerations and behavioral standards only for arbitrators, the questions in this course will address only the conduct of arbitrators. Nevertheless, it is expected that the parties and their counsel will conform their own behavior to the Canons and will avoid placing arbitrators in a position where they are unable to sit or are otherwise at risk of contravening the Canons. Some of the behavior and actions of the non-arbitrator participants in the fact pattern used for this Ethics Course may fail to meet this standard, and you should not assume that such behavior and actions are sanctioned or approved by ARIAS-U.S.' Below this, it states: 'It is also the case that this course has as its primary objective to educate by applying certain hypotheticals that are designed to implicate sections of the Code, as noted. Neither the hypotheticals nor the responses are intended to be utilized for any other purpose, as even minor changes to hypotheticals can lead to debatable changes in results and/or distinct sections of the Code being implicated.' The ARIAS-U.S. logo is at the bottom right. On the left, there is a sidebar with 'opic Title: Introduction', 'eminar name: ARIAS-U.S. Ethics Course', and 'escription: The ARIAS-U.S. Online Ethics Course was designed to focus on ethical issues within the practice of reinsurance arbitration. This course contains fourteen (14) modules made up of hypothetical scenarios designed to implicate sections of the ARIAS-U.S. Code of Conduct and assessment questions throughout the course. The course will require approximately 45 minutes to complete, though there is no time limit. Remember that accuracy of understanding is more important than speed.' Below this is a list of 'available Topics' with 'Introduction' selected and checked, followed by modules 1 through 13, each with a checkmark.
